This is not a primary function of professional code of ethics of a professional body

Select one:

- a. Guide the members
- b. Discipline the members
- c. Validate the members
- d. Explain the responsibilities of the members

Explanation:

The primary functions of a professional code of ethics typically include:

Guiding members on ethical behavior ---> Correct

Disciplining members in case of ethical violations ----> Correct

Explaining responsibilities clearly to ensure accountability ----> Correct

However:

Validating members (e.g., checking qualifications or certifying competence) is usually the role of certification or accreditation bodies, not the code of ethics itself.
